It is Said

That the Legislature may be opened to-morrow; that Pacific Hose Company will have a moonlight drill this week; that the public have had quite enough of the Makiki claim business; that the passport system must be abolished; that it is time to pay taxes; that A. Marques holds the fort on immigration statistics; that the public are invited to attend the opening of the Legislature; that the Honolulu Yacht and Boat Club crew do not have enough "bend" in their bodies; that the only troops to be called out to-morrow will be the Household Guards; that Celso Moreno is writing bitter articles in a Washington paper; that the liquor traffic is a prolific source of revenue; that the copyright law, if amended, would seriously bother the "Bulletin."

Volcano Pictures.

A short time ago Mr. J. A. Gonsalves, the photographer, sent his camera to the Volcano House. While it was there Mr. Maby took a series of views of Halemaumau, the new lake and other points of interest in the crater of Kilauea. The plates came down by the Kinan on Sunday and Mr. Gonsalves has now copies for sale at his store on Fort street. They are capital pictures and give a good idea of the recent changes in the crater.

Arrested.

The native named Kahopuhiki, who stabbed his wife at Kaawa early Monday morning, has been arrested. The police were looking for him all day Monday, but could not find him. About 9 o'clock that evening he went home, when he was immediately put under arrest, and on Tuesday morning brought over to the Police Station, Honolulu, where he now is.

The New Constitution.

The P. C. ADVERTISER office has printed the new Constitution in pamphlet form. It is inserted in the "Honolulu Almanac and Directory," which also contains the old Constitution, and will be sold at the old price—fifty cents a copy.

Boring Down for an Outlet.

[Exchange.]
The authorities of Albany, Ga., have efficiently drained a troublesome pond by boring a well-hole through the ground to a deep subterranean stream. An outlet for the sewerage of a large western university has been found in one of the numerous "sink-holes" with which the cavernous limestone of the country is marked, where a similar underground stream carries the stuff to parts unknown. Such expedients are good, provided the subterranean stream used for the sewer-outlet is not a source of supply for some well.

The Pope's Seal.

[Chicago Times.]
The pope has two kinds of seals, the first used in apostolical letters, private letters, etc., called the fisherman's ring. This is a very large ring, on which is represented St. Peter drawing his net full of fishes. The other is used in bulls, representing St. Peter's head on the right and that of St. Paul on the left, with a cross between the two. On the reverse are sometimes the pope's name and arms. The impressions of the first seal are taken in red wax, but those of the second all ways in lead.

The Louvre.

[Chicago Herald.]
No price could well be put upon the art objects in the Louvre, so high are they above the money mark of the millionaires, yet in the workshops in the basement the men are said to be "literally upon a bed of chips." It would light the sky all around the world should the Louvre go up in golden flames.

Papier Maché "Properties."

[Scientific American.]
Papier maché has come of late to be largely used in the manufacture of theatrical properties, and nearly all the magnificent vases, the handsome plaques, the graceful statues, and the superb gold and silver plate seen to-day on the stage are made of that material.

A Reporter in Disguise.

[Ben: Perley Poore.]

Col. Ware, of Virginia, was, before the late "unpleasantness," a noted breeder of fancy sheep, which he used to exhibit at the national exhibition of the United States agricultural society. He was a member of the executive committee of that society, and became intimately acquainted with Col. H. S. Olcott, now studying Hindoo Spiritualism in India. Olcott was then connected with the New York Tribune, and was sent to Virginia to obtain, if possible, an account of the execution of John Brown. Going to Richmond, he managed to get himself admitted into the ranks of a volunteer company, which had some spare uniforms, and he was thus a witness of the execution at which the brave old zealot was kept standing at death's door while Col. August, who commanded the troops, countermanded several companies that they might have a better view of the scene.

Olcott flattered himself that by feigning sickness he could get away unobserved, but he remained in the ranks until after a review, which closed the performance. As the reviewing officer, accompanied by a large number of military dignitaries, came down the line, he saw with some trepidation that in the rear was his old friend Ware, who was a colonel of the Virginia militia, without any command but none the less active. When the colonel came opposite to where Olcott stood, looking vacantly to the front, he halted and looked at him, as though he remembered his features. But the volunteer gave no sign of recognition—indeed, he subsequently admitted that he endeavored to squint and distort his countenance. The remark passed on, and in a few hours Olcott had resumed his citizen's attire and was on his way to New York.

Symptoms of Brain Weariness.

[Cassell's Family Magazine.]

Patients who suffer from brain weariness are usually very fanciful, and easily given to imagine that they are the subjects of organic disease of the brain, such as softening or tumor. People who consult medical men about their mental or cerebral condition are seldom diseased, although I am bound to confess that long continued brain excitement or debility might end in something serious.

There is, however, usually a marked deviation from the straight road of health, of which the patient is himself perfectly conscious, whether his friends be so or not. He does not feel his "old self," he experiences greater nervousness, he can not settle so long and so well to business as he used to do, he can not grasp calculations so well, he loses taste for any kind of work, whether intellectual or otherwise, which necessitates the least degree of thought. He would fain work as of yore, and tries hard to do so; but the power to continue at it does not really exist in the brain, and he is vexed and worried, and rendered worse in consequence.

His memory assuredly fails to a great extent, and his intellectual powers are reduced to a lower ebb than formerly, or they but flare out occasionally and die away again. There is, to use homely language, "no stay" in the nervous power. Sleep, if it can be obtained for an hour or two, tends greatly to refresh people suffering from this. They awake more hopeful and more full of strength; but, alas! the first excitement blows it all away.

Mighty Men of One Occupation.

[Dr. Talmage's Sermon.]

The general rule is that a man can do only two things well—the first is, to find his sphere; the second, to keep it. The general rule is mason, stick to your trowel; carpenter, stick to your plane; lawyer, stick to your brief; minister, stick to your pulpit, and don't go off lecturing. The mighty men of all professions have been, for the most part, men of one occupation. Sometimes a man is prepared by providence, through a variety of occupations, for some great mission. Sometimes men get prepared for their positions in life by their troubles. They go from disappointment to disappointment until they graduate at the university of hard knocks. Talk of poets used to talk of a talk of getting inspiration by sleeping on Mount Parnassus. It is not the man on the mountain, but the mountain on the man that brings men to the position for which God intended them. The difference about conditions in life is not so much a difference in fruitfulness of occupation as it is in the difference of the endowment of men with that great attribute of stick-to-itiveness. Concentrate all your energies into one direction. Do not be afraid to be called a man of one idea. Better have one great idea than a hundred little ones.

Tricycling Up and Down Hill.

[Cor. London Queen.]

If it is hard to forego a stroke, how much harder it is to get off on a hill, as top in sight, just because every nerve is strained, and a little more and the tension will get dangerous, and yet, as an old rider, I say again get off at the first feeling of distress. What matter if another does ride the hill? If a man, he is very likely stronger, if less experienced. If a woman, she may have greater practice and skill, or light running machine, or, in short, many advantages.

There is a curiously graduated scale to be noticed, according to the experience of riders, as regards going up and down hills. The novices are bumptious; they scornfully refuse to dismount till the machine runs back on a steep hill, and they plunge down hill at a most reckless rate—hence the many accidents. The older rider the more cautious, as a rule, at hills, especially going down them. The one knows what the danger is, the other neither thinks nor cares until the smash comes, when the machine or the brake is to blame—never the rider.

Work of the Life-Saving Stations.

[Frank Leslie's Illustrated.]

Recent statistics show that from November, 1871, to June, 1884, there were on the New Jersey coast 476 wrecks and other disasters, involving property to the value of $11,039,071, and a total of 5,629 lives. Of this aggregate, 380 vessels and all but forty-seven persons were rescued by the men of the life saving stations, while the property saved by them amounted to $10,351,801. That is to say the average loss of life per year for the past thirteen years on the New Jersey coast has been but a fraction over 3 per cent, while previous to the establishment of the present system hundreds of lives and millions of dollars worth of property were lost annually on the New Jersey and Long Island coasts.

Impervious to Bee Stings.

[Chicago Herald.]

A beekeeper having been told that a lad, through being repeatedly stung by bees, had become impervious to any unpleasant sensation when attacked by them, resolved to experiment on his own person. He kept a record of the number of times he was stung, and when he began to cease feeling the effects of the stings. The result was that a sense of being stung had gone when he had been stung thirty times within a few weeks.

And all other Skin and Blood Diseases.
IT REGULATES THE LIVER AND KIDNEYS.
Cures Indigestion and all diseases arising from an enfeebled condition of the system.

DR. MARTINE, of London, the celebrated specialist, says of PARDEE'S REMEDY: "I have used it for twenty years for Blood Diseases, such as Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Tetter and Cancer and I cannot recommend it too highly."

The Rev. Dr. THOMAS, of Hong Kong, China, says: "PARDEE'S REMEDY is a wonderful medicine for the Blood. I have prescribed it hundreds of times for Leprosy, and when given in time, it always cured the patient. I can safely say that Leprosy will never break out on persons who take PARDEE'S REMEDY regularly, and I advise all persons living in countries where Leprosy is prevalent to take PARDEE'S REMEDY as a preventive."
